Lac la Biche Volunteer Firemen Attend Tournament At High Prairie

By T. W. PUE

HIGH PRAIRIE — Last week a number of Lac la Biche firemen, wives and friends were on hand here for a rousing tournament that called for skill and hard work.

The group of nine firemen (approximately half of the force) left Lac la Biche at 5:00 a.m. on Wednesday for the long trip to High Prairie by way of Athabasca and Smith. They took part in competitions with teams from Westlock, High Prairie, Slave Lake, Jasper Place, Namao RCAF base, Hythe, Fairview, McLennan, Grande Prairie and Beaverlodge.

Those making the trip from Lac la Biche included Fire Chief and Mrs. Dobson, Capt. Zaluzny, Driver and Mrs. James Hamar, Firemen John Kowalchuk and Mrs. Kowalchuk, Ted Makriss and John Onufrew.

Three loyal Lac la Biche district ladies who are in Edmonton during the summer months also made the trip and met the group in High Prairie. These were: Alvina Sykes, Kathleen Krupka and Helen Krupka. The latter has been teaching this past year at Owl River. These three teachers have been attending summer school in Edmonton.

Hon. E. W. Hinman, provincial treasurer, was in High Prairie and officiated at the opening ceremonies of the tournament. He made presentations to winning teams from Westlock, High Prairie and Jasper Place.

Before returning to Lac la Biche a number in the group made a tour of the east Peace River country.

MLA Addresses FUA Meeting

Mr. Maccagno M. L. A. addressed an F.U.A. meeting held at Helina School on July 4.

The main topic of discussion was "Why should residents around Fork Lake be denied the privilege of putting out nets one day a week for a 24 hour period as previously?"

The members also gave us a resume of the session of parliament dealing with topics of interest to this district. This was Mr. Maccagno's first visit and the meeting was very well attended.

Goose Lake

Miss Iris Parker was home from Edmonton for a visit with her parents.

Mrs. S. York is here for a visit with her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Parker went to Atmore to visit her parents.

THREE SUFFER INJURIES WHEN TRUCK GOES OUT OF CONTROL

LAC LA BICHE — Three men are in hospital here as a result of an accident near the Lac la Biche Mission about seven miles from here, late Saturday afternoon.

Seriously injured are Auguste Cardinal and Alex Pruden, the former with internal injuries and the latter with injuries to the spine. The third man, Lloyd Whitefish sustained less serious injuries according to reports from hospital authorities.

The accident occurred when a light truck in which the men were riding went out of control after striking a rough spot in the road. Lloyd Whitefish is from Clondonald and the other two men are local residents.

Lac La Biche

Mrs. and Mr. J. B. McCarthey, daughter of Mrs. Settles paid a recent visit to their new home in Abbotsford, B. C. Accompanying them on the trip was Mrs. McCarthey's brother, Gerald Johnston of the RCAF at Cold Lake. They were at the Settles' home for a two week holiday.

J. D. Johnston of the RCAF at Rivers Camp, Man. has been transferred for a two month period to the Air Cadet Camp at Abbotsford, B. C. The camp is located three miles south of the Settles' home, where Douglas is staying.

Mr. and Mrs. John Beniuk and Mr. and Mrs. John Wewk accompanied Mr. and Mrs. John Hawirko and family on a holiday trip to the Calgary Stampede, Banff, and various points in British Columbia and the western United States.

Mrs. P. Hayduk and Mrs. J. Cunningham, members of the teaching staff of the Lac la Biche high school expect to return from Edmonton on Friday, after marking high school exam papers for the department of education.

Alcide Richard is home from Yellowknife where he has been employed.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lemay have as their guests their daughter, Doreen and family.

Mrs. George Currie and three children of Edmonton and Mrs. E. Shoup and children of Lacombe were recent visitors at the Harry Cramer home. Barbara and Lynn Currie remained with their grandpa and grandma Cramer, while the baby is staying with grandpa and grandma Currie.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richard are spending several weeks visiting with relatives in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Ed Klingenberg and little Judy are guests at the home of Mrs. Klingenberg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cadioux while Mr. Klingenberg assists with the Children's Camp being held this week at Egg Lake.

Fortune did not smile on the team of firemen who motored to High Prairie for the hose coupling contest last Wednesday. The men failed to score in each attempt.

PERSONAL IMPRESSIONS OF CENTRE OF ALBERTA'S LARGEST OIL FIELD

By HENRY THOMPSON

Color in a variety of shades as you enter the town, is the first striking impression of this latest of Alberta oil towns. Hundreds of trailers occupy each side of the road entrance. Small two-room motels and every design in trailers, colorful and substantial and a few not so well built, crowd four trailer courts within the town limits. Unnumbered and unmarked, they lend an air of utter confusion to the casual visitor, who may be trying to locate a particular person in one of these trailer homes.

District Welcomes New Doctor

An office has been opened here by Dr. D. D. Bouvier, B.Sc. M.D. L.M.C.C. The doctor was born at Egg Lake near here, and attended the Bouvier school, which was named after his grandparents.

He received his high school education at Plamondon, and graduated from the University of Alberta in 1954. Dr. Bouvier has had two year's training at the General Hospital in Edmonton.

In welcoming Dr. and Mrs. Bouvier and their three children to the district we are reminded of the not too common, "local boy makes good" story.

New Addition To Public School

Work will commence shortly on a three-room addition to the Lac la Biche Public School. According to J. Chester, secretary-treasurer of the division the rooms are expected to be ready for occupancy by the beginning of the new school term, September 4.

The new addition will bring the number of rooms operating within the town to 19, and additional teachers will be needed. More than 500 children were enrolled last term.

Other construction work is slated for schools within the division this summer but the need of additional class rooms is more urgent here in town and will have priority over the other projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hamar and family plan to leave July 19, for several weeks holidays with relatives in Edmonton and Two Hills.

New Community Hall

Owl River — A successful organization of the Owl River community league was held on July 5.

Plans to build a community hall were discussed. The building will be 30 by 60 feet and will be just south of the local store.

Otta Kamke, Abel Shawn and Leo Gregoire were appointed active members. Mrs. Kay Torrrier is secretary-treasurer.

Craigend

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Balaban and Mrs. Geo. Danyluk have recently returned from the trip to Ranfurly where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Bronnie Balaban and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Kryzanowski.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Happner motored to Saskatchewan to visit friends. Mr. and Mrs. Grigorovich motored to Saskatchewan.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Watson and family from Grande Prairie were recent guests of Mrs. Lewiski.

The business section is a contrast, in the latest modern design of town planning for customer service. Built of fire-proof materials, joined to conserve space, ultra modern in every respect, these buildings do not convey any hint of temporary occupation usual with other oil centres.

Drug store, restaurants, pool room and bowling alley, general stores, dry goods, hardware, meat markets, post office. Others supply every possible need, and offices for business, occupy one block that faces a large area left open in the centre of the town.

The open block was almost completely covered by cars, trucks and large transport machines used in the oil business. Other cars and smaller trucks lined both fronts of the business section. The cement sidewalks were crowded with people.

This was Saturday night at Drayton. I hesitated to push a desperate passage through the dense crowd a half block from the bus depot to the hotel. I was agreeably surprised when a polite passage was allowed, when they viewed my luggage.

The hotel and restaurant take up most of one block on the north side of the parking area. Another large restaurant, operated by a Chinese staff have six waiters that quickly handle their customers. The hotel restaurant is equally large and handles the large customer trade with attentive dispatch.

The hotel rooms are large, windows spacious. A central wall light, a desk light and for in-bed reading a shaded bulb that swivels the light to precisely the right position for eye ease in leisurely reading. A shower bath is an innovation in hotel service that few small towns care to introduce for individual room service. The wash room has a shaded light that

Lifeguard At Lac La Biche

The Lac La Biche Lions Club has hired Danny Hamar of Edmonton as life-guard to watch over swimmers at the government dock by the Legion Hut. He will be present at the dock from 10 to 12 o'clock in the morning and from 2 to 5:30 p.m. except on rainy or exceptionally cold days. It is expected that he will remain here for July and August.

Danny, who has won many awards will give swimming instructions to those who wish to learn to swim. It is hoped that many parents will allow their children to learn to swim. Those wishing to take lessons should contact Mr. Hamar.

To make this a successful venture it is necessary to have the co-operation of both parents and children and all swimmers. It should be impressed on the children that they must listen to the life-guard and come to safety if they are in too deep water or otherwise endangering their own or someone else's safety.

The Lions Club thinks that there is a need for a safety supervisor and instructor, and it is hoped that he will be given help and co-operation.

SALAD SPURGE

Yes sir, now's the time to splurge with a salad. Salads are so important that they've declared a National Salad week, set this year for July 26th to August 4th.

There are many reasons why you should eat salads. An obvious one is that you're making use of agricultural products. From the standpoint of nutrition, raw vegetables and fruits are more healthful. They contain more needed vitamins and roughage than when cooked. Besides this, salads add variety in color, texture, and flavor to meals and are enjoyed by all from 2 to 92 years.

And salads are so easy to make. Can you think of a vegetable you can prepare for eating faster. Gather your vegetables from the garden, wash, trim and tear, cut or chop to desired shapes, toss into a bowl, add your dressing and there you are. Colorful, crisp and cool.

There are many different types of salads to suit the men as well as the ladies at your table. The main dish type using meat, fish, chicken or eggs along with the vegetables go over well with the men folk. Tossed salads are generally served with a meal. Jellied salads can be a part of the meal or a pleasant change for afternoon tea with hot rolls.

And of course the salad dressings are as many and varied as the salad types. But there are three main classes. The two uncooked ones are the French dressing and mayonnaise. The old standby cooked salad dressing is the third type. You can put your individual touch to the dressings by the seasonings you add to them.

Remember with dressings — use them sparingly. Dressing is to supplement the flavor of the salad and keep the food moist. Not smother the flavor of the food itself.

Make National Salad Week count, get out of your vegetable rut and find some new and delicious salad recipes. Write for the free bulletin "The Salad Bowl".

Owl River

Many tons of hay have been destroyed in this vicinity by the flooding of the river flats. The high water has also been instrumental in causing the Toutant family to move their home and farm buildings to more elevated land on the west side of the river. The water is receding rapidly at present and will soon be in its regular channel.

Fred Munawich is a frequent visitor at the new home site of the Toutant family.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks of Westlock were recent weekend visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson. Mr. Thompson of Boyle and his son-in-law were also visitors in the F. B. Thompson home during the week.

Mrs. Bob Rudiger and daughter also Miss Emma Johnston of Lac la Biche visited their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Johnston recently.

Mrs. Cecilia Diesel has been ill for some time.

Mrs. Robert Diesel and daughters of Wandering River are visiting relatives here.

Miss Jacqueline Lee Diesel of Wandering River is spending part of the summer holidays with her grand parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Schirmacher, residents of Lac la Biche for the past 26 years, are proud to announce the engagement of their daughter, Leola Doris, to Mr. Francis Alphonse Garnier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Garnier of Grassland. Why The Exhibition?

Edmonton Exhibition, like the Calgary Stampede, offers a multitude of attractions to young and old, not least of which to country folk is the chance to come to the city for the big annual outing and see the sights while "doing the fair".

There's always plenty to see—from fat ladies to two-headed pigs, "girlie" shows and midway thrills—not to mention those games of "chance and skill" which manage to keep their owners solvent at least during the fair season.

But we ask "Why the Exhibition? Is it to bring Ferris wheels and roll-down games, hot dogs and hamburgers?"

No the hamburgers are actually at the far end of the purpose of the fair. Its prime and only practical purpose is as an agricultural fair. That's how it started. That's why it is maintained. That's how it should be visited and operated.

So, while you enjoy the sideshows, remember that the main attraction is that portion housed in the livestock and farm product displays. Visit steaks on the hoof first and attend to the hamburgers later.

Automation - Starvation

As reported elsewhere in this newspaper, the modern day farmer is not getting much milk and honey out of the technological advances which have changed the whole pattern of his workaday life. Instead, the Dean of Agriculture at Saskatchewan University says, technological improvements have opened a Pandora's box of benefits and problems which, in traditional Pandoric style, are about as mischievous as a box of monkeys.

For, as Dean W. B. Baker points out, while science has created the means to a higher farm income, other factors cause serious income fluctuations. In other words, automation might be said to lead dangerously close to starvation—in modified form at least.

Dean Baker went on to revive, in a recent Edmonton address to Social Workers, the proposal for a type of crop insurance which would safeguard the farmer against the hazards of nature and the market place. "Neither guaranteed prices nor crop insurance have yet received serious political consideration, at least as far as comprehensive policies and programs are concerned," he told his audience.

It seems evident that the farmer's right to a guaranteed annual wage is just as ethical and sound as an automobile worker's. What are our political friends thinking in this respect? They cannot for ever give the Farm G.A.W. the merry Haw-Haw.

Century Old Fields

At Rothamsted experimental station in Hertfordshire, north of London, England, an 11-acre field has produced wheat, without the aid of any kind of fertilizer, continuously for 112 years and yielded 10 bushels per acre in 1955. The crop was started by Sir John Lawes, a landowner, in 1843 and used as a check plot against fields where he was doing the first experimenting with artificial fertilizers. Sir John obtained amazing results by applying old bones, soaked in sulphuric acid, to his land. He started the commercial fertilizer industry by opening a factory to prepare this mixture. His experiments grew and his land became an experimental station which today has the most up-to-date scientific equipment and is staffed with scientists from many parts of the world.

Throughout the long history of the project the 11-acre test plot has been maintained to determine the natural ability of the soil to produce wheat. Other long-term continuous plots are barley 103 years, mangels 80 years and hay 100 years. All have yielded a crop in each year of their existence.

Grain shipments from the port of Vancouver average as much in a month as Seattle ships in a year.

Rising Cost-of-Living

Consumer prices in Canada are moving upward at a rate which economists have called "a major spurt". This in spite of all the talk of recession and the evident fall-off in sales in the automotive industry.

The index base of 100, which is reckoned on prices prevailing in 1947-49, has been buried in figures for so long that its origins are virtually forgotten. But the last recorded index was 115.4, covering the mid-April to mid-May consumer price structure. This equals the record of October 1953 and is actually 1.1 per cent higher than it was one year ago.

To make the situation more alarming, especially to the farmer whose income is not bolstered by a cost of living bonus, the federal statisticians expect the rise to continue for several months, on the basis that the last three movements of consumer prices have all been in the direction of outer space—up and up and up.

Here we find one of those mysterious situations in the national economy which perpetually plague our primary producers, and with them out workers and businessmen too. For the fact is that the world-wide credit squeeze which is now in effect was designed to curtail spending and thus deflate our currency and get it back to normal. This the squeeze has failed to do.

The fact of credit curtailment is evident—layoffs in the auto industry and slackness in the building trades are evidence of this. But why should prices be going up when they should—by all orthodox principles—be coming down as result of the credit squeeze?

Most men on the land could find one answer to that. Credit buying. People want goods. They don't have the cash. They buy on credit all the small things they normally buy for cash. Demand boosts prices. But this doesn't do any good for the farmer—the primary producer.

Attention: Farmers

A Texan, who recently read of a device perfected in England which ran a tractor, wrote a major U.S. newspaper, explaining how, in Texas, tractors have been running themselves for years.

The farmer wrote that the tractor is driven by a set of cupped discs, which run down the furrow the tractor leaves on the previous run. The discs are attached to the steering column in front of the tractor, and if the tractor gets out of the furrow, or the plow becomes uncoupled, the tractor cuts off.

The Texan says the only attention the tractor needs is refueling and that it will run twenty-four hours a day. This is good for flat country and, we think, many farmers using several tractors might save labor by employing such a device. Such mechanization has long been successfully used in almost every other industry, and there is no reason why farmers should not take advantage of this labor-saving method, where farms are level and conditions justify such innovations.

Let's Save Lives

Now that the summer vacation season is upon us, it may not be amiss for us to repeat the old warning that careful driving is what the nation needs if it is to reduce the horrible cost of speed on our highways.

Alberta, like any other province, furnishes its quota of victims to the automobile-highway toll every year. With the best of intentions, we continue to permit drunken drivers to operate cars and get off relatively free when apprehended. We like to think that we can violate traffic regulations without having to pay the penalty. It is time, however, that we got rid of this foolish notion.

Rigid enforcement of every traffic regulation, with stiff fines imposed for minor violations, would do much to make the average automobile driver more safety-conscious. Let's support the work of our traffic officers and give them the satisfaction of knowing that we are behind them when they arrest careless and reckless drivers.

"GRAND DECEPTION" SERIES

I wish to congratulate you on the size to which your paper has grown and the amount of news contained therein.

I was quite intrigued with your story of the Grand Deception by Moná Louis de Rougemont. I read this story as it was published in the "Wide World" magazine in instalment form and was desperately disappointed when it was discontinued. It would seem to me he should have been encouraged to concoct other thrilling adventures which made such interesting reading.

L. J. MITCHELL,

CLASS HUMOR

"You know, class," said the teacher here, "it used to be the custom in the olden days to bring the teacher the rosiest and juiciest apple on the last day of school." Next morning, when the pedagogue entered his classroom, he found on his desk a large red onion. Proped against it was a card on which was neatly lettered, "In appreciation of your exalted services". When the class assembled, the teacher looked sadly at the class, took up the onion, looked at it long and intently, then held it aloft. In a voice tremulous with emotion, he said, "It's things like this that make my eyes water."

THE MUNICIPAL PAPER

The value of having a municipal paper has again been demonstrated by a recent issue. In that issue the report of the minutes of the council meeting shows us that the council favors the imposition of a sales tax as suggested by the provincial government; is strongly opposed to the assessment of farm buildings, and also wants the provincial government to take over the responsibility of education entirely.

But for the municipal paper, very few of the taxpayers would have had any idea of the council's attitude on these matters.

It would appear that the provincial government desires to levy this sales tax and is suggesting it to the municipalities as part of a "new deal in municipal finance" in the expectation that, if some favor the idea—as does the council of M.D. Lac Ste. Anne—then it can avoid criticism and unpopularity by saying that the tax was levied at the request of the municipalities.

If the Province insists on levying this proposed new tax, it should also accept our council's recommendation and "take over the responsibility of education entirely." I have talked to a number of local farmers about this matter and I have still to meet the first one to favor this proposed sales tax. The general opinion here seems to be that Alberta, a province with such large revenues, should be willing and able to do more for education than it does now and that without imposing new taxes.

Other items in the same issue give us information that we would not otherwise have had, about the negotiations with the teachers and the increase in the salary schedule.

EXIT POPULATION PROBLEM

There are too many controversial subjects confronting folks today; and here's a simple way to rid ourselves of one of them. Add 200 horsepower to the automobile engine, increase the speed limit to 75 mph, and issue drivers' licenses to everyone over 12 years of age. Then you can forget about birth control.

DISTRICT AGRICULTURIST NOTES

By J. S. LORE

The week of July 22 to 28 will be proclaimed the Farm and Safety Week in Alberta, coinciding with the National Farm Safety Week in the United States. Every year there are many deaths and accidents due to lack of caution in operating farm machines.

It is hoped that during the week of July 22 to 28 that the owner of every farm will make a special note of reminding his employees and himself to operate all machines safely.

Most farmers will be busy making hay for the next couple of weeks, so let's make hay the safe and happy way. Make that your farm slogan for the busy season ahead and at least there won't be any tears or vain words of regret. Let's keep the lives and limbs of your family and hired help safe and intact. In blunt, straightforward language, whether this is done or not, is up to you, the boss and Safety Supervisor of your farm.

While modern farm machinery can be dangerous, it is engineered with a minimum of hazards, and even the older machines have many of the most hazardous parts shielded—partly or fully—to provide safety to the operator.

It's only using horse sense then to see that the safety devices are in place and that the operator takes heed of the warning signs in the danger areas.

These suggestions may seem overly simple to the experienced operator, but are they to the hired man working with different machinery—to your own boy or the neighbor's, working for the first time as a full-fledged member of the haying crew? How well has the safety lesson been learned?

When everyone is tired or you're cleaning up the last of the field ahead of a shower and suddenly a machine plugs—do you shut off the power before unplugging the baler or the forage harvester, or do you try to save a minute and maybe lose a finger, a hand or an arm? It's a gamble not worth taking for the best of operators have been known to lose.

Safe practices such as shutting off the power before oiling, safety shields in place, adjusting or unplugging machinery are necessary for accident prevention.

There are others, too, in a good safety program. One is the fight against fatigue. Cut down the excessively long hours and help shorten the day with a coffee break, a pot of tea or a glass of milk. The farm wife or the girls in the family could be a help in getting the morning and afternoon break started.

These short breaks during the day will get more done, add pleasure to the task and certainly help prevent more accidents.

Of course, when Farm Safety Week is over is not the time to relax from safety precautions. The real purpose of Farm Safety Week is to try and get every operator to form safety habits in operating his machine and that these habits will be used every day throughout the year.

REMEMBER: The only Right Way to Hay is the Safe Way.

Canada's farm cash income from sale of farm products and payments on previous year's grain crops amounted in 1955 to $2,352,600,000.

is the last word in getting a good shave.

Few hotels with a population of less than a hundred thousand, can boast of such perfectionist standards to serve the travelling public at rates that are not excessive in view of the service offered.

A friendly co-operative staff adds to a visitor's pleasure.

The first discovery well three years ago, like all oil ventures, was kept a secret from the general public. The little community that had only three stores, a post office and two churches were aroused to a realization of their importance just two years ago. Since then the growth has been phenomenal. An estimated population of over three thousand. The last census in March of this year recorded 2,640 people.

A conservative estimate of those employed in the Pembina field and associate supply and transportation work would be over five thousand.

Installed services in water and electricity and a program of town construction budgetted for one hundred and sixty thousand dollars is expected to be met by current assessments, but may fall short to the extent of twenty or twenty-five thousand. Careful planning and good management are essential features associated with Drayton, and portends successful progressive enlargement at low costs to meet future needs in development optimistically predicted for the Pembina field. The town is under Government supervision for the present. A town council acts in an advisory capacity. Haphazard growth that adds tremendously to the costs of services in other towns is being avoided at Drayton by a well-planned layout of residence and business, which will reduce cost in water and gas mains and make possible an installation of services as quickly as demand requires.

A population of young western adventurers have sprung up with the old-time pioneer spirit. These oil workers have developed a mode of living not unique in western history. Drillers, rough-necks and other in well crews follow oil development wherever new fields take them. Similar to the early migratory natives who had no fixed abode but followed their best means of livelihood, the buffalo, as conditions and circumstances dictated. The modern trailer home, from six hundred dollars as high as thirteen thousand dollars, quickly movable, is the replacement for the six to ten hide buffalo tepees that served an older phase of Alberta's bounteous treasures.

The people are friendly, appear to have dropped the older inhibitions of the "Never go places people". Happy toddlers and school age children wend their skittish way among trailers and parked cars. Completely indifferent to the danger of unescorted guidance, safe and secure in the knowledge that car drivers are jointly responsible for their welfare, as drivers creep slowly past children's joyous clatter to enter their own individual parking space.

Men working in the oil fields and associate supply and transportation facilities are from all parts of the west and many American states. Canadians are learning the business and will soon have men trained to occupy the higher management positions formally held by American skilled workers from the Texas and California oil fields, where oil fields are an old story.

Canadian money has been slow to enter into risk capital but is now gaining increased momentum as Canadian companies are being formed to share in the black gold wealth long dormant in Alberta ground.

There is little difference and no dispute over the source of capital that provides an oil worker's wages. Political parties can wrangle this meaningless difference to their hearts' content but international tensions do not affect one iota the friendly relations of Canadian and American workers gathered together in the fast growing community of Drayton Valley.

Some fine modern homes are completed and others under construction to house resident staff of various oil companies in the field. The large oil company buildings that front a mile of highway on each side are an indication of the vast resources of the Pembina area and future permanence of such operations.

Drayton Valley is on the northern fringe of proved production area. The town itself has grown over nine producing wells. A good gravelled highway that leaves the hard top one mile east of Entwistle to Drayton twenty seven miles south is being improved to a high top classification. Heavy machinery used and heavy transport equipment necessary to oil field work, makes an all weather road a MUST, if successful development is not to be hampered. The road continues on towards the Saskatchewan river and was to form a U loop that enters back to the hard top some twenty-five miles west of Entwistle, taps the heart of the now known proven area. Feeder roads penetrate considerable distance each side of the Main Highway.

Judging from investment made in permanent buildings by oil companies there can be no question or secrecy in the fact that such extensive construction would not be taken if permanence was not justified by inside information from oil company experts.

There are three hundred producing oil wells in the area, another hundred and eighty to be completed before the end of June. Others started as soon as well rigs are released from present operations. The field is restricted to four wells per quarter section.

Drayton will occupy a permanent place in the Pembina area as a supply centre. The highway through Drayton is the only transportation link with the railway and hard top at Entwistle. Daily bus service and mails, telephone service, provide satisfactory schedules to the town and travelling public. Drayton Valley in my opinion, has a bright and permanent future.

Dental HealthBrushing Teeth.

Teeth should be brushed regularly and thoroughly because brushing improves their appearance. It also gives a sense of cleanliness of the mouth, stimulates circulation of the blood in the gums and helps prevent decay and other dental disorders. Regular and systematic brushing is a good habit to form and the earlier it is taught to a child the better.

It should be recognized that brushing alone is inadequate for the prevention of dental caries. It represents only one of the procedures that must be utilized in the development of mouth hygiene.

The teeth should be thoroughly brushed after each meal, or at least every night before going to bed and every morning after breakfast, and the mouth should be thoroughly rinsed with warm water.

Children should use a small toothbrush and adults should use one of medium size. Selection of the toothbrush and the method of brushing are very important in the care of the teeth and gums. Your dentist can advise you regarding the type of brush and the toothbrushing method best suited to your mouth.

Nutrition and Dental Health

Teeth in the formative stages are sensitive to the many conditions that affect growth and health. An adequate diet is needed at all ages, and particularly during the growing and developing years.

Some foods are more nearly adequate than others for partaking health and promoting growth. They are called the "protective foods" and they should form the basis of meal planning. These foods include milk and fruits, whole grain cereals and breads, eggs and lean meat, poultry and fish. In some sections of the country iodized salt and, in most areas, fish liver oils may will be added to these foods.

An adequate diet will contain a sufficient amount of foods rich in carbohydrates, without the addition of large amounts in concentrated form, such as would be found in candies, jams and jellies.

In the dental field, many research workers agree that there is a relationship between eating candy or excessive amounts of sugar and dental caries.

Special effort should be made every day to include raw or crisp foods requiring chewing such as head lettuce, celery, raw fruits, raw carrots and raw cabbage.

Good Dental Habits

1. Brushing the teeth at least twice a day, after breakfast and supper.

2. Eating plenty of nourishing foods.

3. Eating some coarse foods that require chewing.

4. Getting plenty of fresh air, sunshine and rest.

5. Visiting the dentist at least twice a year for dental examination.

Dental defects may lead to:

1. Pain.

2. Irritability.

3. Loss of teeth.

4. Loss of chewing surface.

5. Bad breath.

6. Loss of good looking natural expression.

7. An unsightly condition of the teeth and malformation of the jaw.

8. Lowered physical resistance and impairment of general health.

9. Great expenditures for correction.

Standards For a Good Set of Teeth

1. All teeth should be present.

2. The teeth should be clean and not discolored, and free from decay.

3. The teeth should be even, not crowded, regularly formed and not widely spaced.

4. The cusps of the upper molar teeth should fit in between the cusps of the lower molar teeth. Also, the upper teeth should slightly overlap the lower teeth.
